

Business Consultant Dr. Karen Weisgerber

Karen Weisgerber completed her Ph.D. at Boston College. She furthered her education under the auspices of Harvard Medical School with both a pre- and post-doctoral clinical internship at the Beth Israel Hospital, followed by a postdoctoral internship in neuropsychology at Cambridge Hospital.

After studies in psychoanalysis at the Psychoanalytic Institute of New England, Karen rounded her educational endeavors with a certificate in Leadership and Performance coaching through Brown University's School of Professional Studies. As a licensed psychologist, she has provided therapy and consultation through her private practice for over 30 years.

Karen enhanced her research and interview experience as a Senior Advisor at the Boston Center on Wealth and Philanthropy. She was an active participant in the Family Wealth Impact Project, which investigated the risk factors of inherited wealth. She was also the principal interviewer for a Wisdom and Wealth project researching the field of wealth advising, funded by the Templeton Foundation.

As an Integrative Family Wealth Consultant she engages individuals, couples, and families around the multi-faceted issues that present themselves with significant resources, as well as concerns that arise with the distribution of wealth among siblings and across generations. She also provides her expertise to financial and legal professionals seeking to deepen the services they offer through speaking engagements, workshops, and other industry events.
